

Step into an Alaska Experience

NATIVE TLINGIT CULTURE Most people who work here aren't just passing through. In fact, ninety-five percent of them are from Hoonah - Alaska's largest Tlingit village. They're the people you'll see performing authentic Native dances. Or the ones preparing fresh alder-smoked Alaska salmon. All have colorful local stories to share and would love to show you their home.

UNSPOILED WILDERNESS It's a perfectly natural setting. No wonder the Tlingit settled here thousands of years ago, preceded by local whales, bears and eagles. One wild excursion guarantees you'll see humpback whales, and another takes you into the interior forests and muskegs of Chichagof Island to search for coastal brown bears. Spectacular in every sense.

ALASKA-SIZED ADVENTURES Even dining is an adventure here. Where else is the catch of the day - wild Alaska salmon - caught fresh in the very waters that surround you? And the tasty Alaska crab is cleaned and served while you watch, usually next to an ice-cold Alaska microbrew. Always fresh. Always festive.

Answers the question:

"What was the high point of your Alaska vacation?"

Was it the rush of plunging 5,400 feet on the world's largest zip line? The authentic Tlingit dancing and storytelling? Maybe it was coming within a few feet of humpback whales or spotting a brown bear munching on some wild salmon. Icy Strait Point is a photo album full of high points – 21 different excursions, 3 waterfront restaurants, 11 Alaskan-owned shops – all waiting to be discovered.
